Gentlemen.

Will you do me a favour and tell me if the enclosed described coin has any value at all. I inherited it from my old uncle who lived in Austria and the fact that each of these coins--I have quite a lot-was in a special velwet case makes me believe that they must have some value.

The coin seems to be a 10 Kreuzer Piece from1839 .
the enclosed cut shows the inscription on them
Much obliged in advance

Yours very truly

Dear Sir:

In reply to your letter of August 19th, as far as I know your Austrian coin has no special value. The 10-kreuzer pieces seem to be common. The fact that it is in a velvet case puzzles me. It possibly may be a special date or a slight modification in the design to make it unusual. This I could not say. It would be worth comparatively nothing in this country.

Very truly yours,

Curator
